General Description

In the broadest sense, communication is the study of human expression both verbally and nonverbally. This program explores all forms of communication through humanistic, social scientific, critical-cultural, and rhetorical methodology. A competent communicator is skilled in creating ethical messages appropriate to audience, purpose, and context.

Career Options

Below is a sample of the career options available for the communication major. A few of these require an associate degree, most require a bachelor's degree, and some require a graduate-level degree.
